

VICTORIA MINTEY

PUBLIC SPEAKING & COMMUNICATION SKILLS SPECIALIST

Victoria holds a Masters in Performance and a degree in Psychology, complemented by twenty years of professional stage experience.

Based in Singapore since 2011, she has built her coaching practice across the APAC region and brings a fluent understanding of the cultural dynamics that impact communication choices in the corporate world.

Her performance expertise informs a precise command of voice, presence, and narrative structure; her grounding in psychology enables her to diagnose the underlying barriers to effective executive communication — nerves, self-perception, or the disconnect between intent and impact.

Her sessions are experiential and applied, built around active practice rather than slide-based instruction.

WHAT WE DO & HOW WE DO IT

Our training stands out thanks to these principles:

Specialist, Not Generalist

We are a boutique practice offering programmes exclusively in the areas we care about most deeply and understand most intimately.

- Building Executive Presence
- Presenting with Confidence
- On-Camera Presence
- Storytelling in Business
- Personal Impact
- Public Speaking for Large Forums
- Reducing Stage Fright
- Communicating to Influence
- Crafting a Narrative
- Voice Work for Clarity and Authority
- Question and Objection Handling

The Theatre Lens

This training is designed and led by a professional theatre actor, bringing a unique performer's perspective to the table. Actors have exceptional skills in voice, body language, expression, reading the room, commanding attention and storytelling. This expertise, combined with over a decade in the training room, brings a distinctive energy and depth of insight to your sessions.

Theory Into Practice

We don't just explain the theory behind good communication and executive presence. We actively and physically practise with participants in all our group and 1:1 sessions. Participants will be on their feet, working through a variety of speaking scenarios. They'll receive expert guidance and feedback until they can confidently embody new skills, speak with authority, and handle the unexpected with ease. The key to making change is active, energised experimentation that expands the comfort zone.

WHAT YOU'LL TAKE AWAY

We are confident that each participant will leave with:

- a richer understanding of their own presence
- a practical toolkit of communication techniques
- the motivation to make lasting change
